World's best in healthcare advertising

The international NYF Health Awards honours the world's best healthcare advertising and celebrates creative achievement within the healthcare advertising, marketing, and communication space beyond the barriers of language and culture.

“NYF Health is proud to shortlist this year's impressive creative work in healthcare, wellness, and pharmaceutical emanating from some of the world's most prominent agencies,” says Scott Rose, president, NYF advertising competitions.

“The calibre of this year's work was exceptionally forward-thinking and impactful. Leading edge entries from around the globe demonstrated innovation and truly impressed the NYF Health Awards grand jury.”

All shortlisted entries progress to live judging rounds to determine award rank determined by the 2023 NYF Health Awards executive jury populated with award-winning industry experts and thought leaders.

Entrants advancing to the next round utilised a wide spectrum of strategies to create engagement and deliver creative result-driven work for prominent brands.

Agencies employed activations, experiences and events, influencers, social video, Out-of-Home (OOH), digital marketing, technology-based engagement, branded entertainment, integrated campaigns, altered reality, animation, and visual effects to position brands, engage consumers and health care professionals, and achieve market growth.
