27 Sep 2006

A leading financial, administration and transaction solutions company, the Fidentia Group has just signed as main title partner for this year's Top Empowerment Awards.

On 9th November 2006, The Fidentia Top Empowerment Business Awards 2006 will salute the winners of both the Impumelelo Top Empowerment Companies 2006 Awards and the Top Women in Business & Government 2006 Awards.

The event is being billed as the most prestigious event on the SA business calendar. It takes place at the Extreme Lifestyle Centre in Fourways and will be a glittering occasion attended by CEOs, Directors, Government ministers and dignitaries, business owners and entrepreneurs, senior managers and all the right people in business and government.

Empowering the recognition of empowerment

The new Awards format makes way for a more streamlined and fine-tuned process of recognizing the best empowerment players in South Africa. Fidentia has a culture of using the best to deliver the best and positions itself as a business enabler. As J. Arthur W. Brown, CEO of Fidentia adds: "Empowerment in this country is generally becoming more accepted and is now an integral part of South African business. We believe these awards are keeping pace with empowerment issues and we are really proud to be associated with such an influential and highly regarded reward process."

Awards owner, Top Companies Publishing Chairman, Dick Fletcher adds: "Fidentia is a modern, forward thinking South African company with high morals and aims, so the mix is ideal. We now have the perfect partner helping us to recognise this country's most successful black economic and gender empowered organisations and individuals."

The Fidentia Group also provides integrated financial and administration transactional solutions, through a team of talented people, who utilize best of breed technology to craft client specific solutions with its foundations based upon a proprietary consulting model. The Fidentia Group focuses on the financial services, retail and telecommunication industries.
