9 Mar 2021

Business and Arts South Africa's (Basa) Assembly, partnered by the British Council, is a programme of hybrid live and digital engagements across social, digital and media platforms, set to go live to the public on 25 and 26 March 2021. Themed 'Creativity Now: Cultural intelligence in the time of Covid-19', Basa Assembly seeks to explore the insights cultural intelligence can offer, in terms of rebooting the creative economy in South Africa, the rest of the African continent and globally.

Basa Assembly partnered by British Council

Business and Arts South Africa 11 Feb 2021

"In line with 2021 being declared the International Year of Creative Economy for Sustainable Development by the United Nations General Assembly, Assembly aims to raise awareness, promote cooperation and networking, encourage sharing best practices and experiences, enhance human resource capacity, promote an enabling environment at all levels, as well as tackle the challenges of the current creative economy," comments Basa CEO, Ashraf Johaardien.

"Assembly is also intended as a vehicle for showcasing Basa's research into the South African creative sector with the launch of ArtsTrack No. 9, Basa's biennial research project tracking consumer engagement within the arts and culture sectors," he adds.

One of the launch highlights, scheduled for broadcast via Social TV on 24 March 2021, is an interview by Johaardien with Dr Andrea Rurale (from Milan, Italy), on the social impact of the arts, the degree to which the creative sector and cultural institutions have (or have not) been agile, responsive or resilient, in terms of Covid-19 challenges, and the future of the creative economy at this point in time.
