

MainStreaming appoints Xpresso Communications

MainStreaming, a media delivery company that enables broadcasters, media and enterprise companies to provide live and VOD streaming through the use of AI-powered technology has appointed Xpresso Communications as its global communications partner.

Xpresso Communications will provide strategic integrated marketing communications services - including content creation and digital distribution to support the company's visibility and growth.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>