

Stratititude empowers women in the workplace through bursary initiative

Stratititude has selected four women from its parent company, PLP Group, as beneficiaries of its bursary initiative as part of its commitment to empowering women in the workplace.

The women will be enrolled in management skills courses that aim to empower them by improving personal growth, increasing skills and driving career growth. The agency is investing nearly R100,000 in bursaries as part of its 'Make It Matter' focus for 2021.
