

Mpumi Mazibuko and Nakampe Molewa are now Coca-Cola execs

Coca-Cola has promoted two staff members to executive roles for the Southern and East Africa markets. Reporting to president, Kelvin Balogun, legal counsel Mpumi Mazibuko will now serve as legal director while head of strategy, business planning, and performance monitoring Nakampe Molewa has been named performance director and executive assistant.

Mazibuko joined Coca-Cola in 2012 after completing his articles of clerkship at DM Kisch Inc., he also worked as an associate at Webber Wentzel Bowens and practiced at Spoor & Fisher as a commercial litigator and trademark attorney. Molewa, on the other hand, joined the company as a senior strategy analyst in 2009 and had worked at Citi Bank and Accenture before that.
