Webhelp appoints Tammy Chetty as managing director for South Africa

Tammy Chetty has been appointed managing director of Webhelp's South African operations. Webhelp is a global company focusing on consultancy and customer experience (CX). The announcement follows the opening of Webhelp's Durban branch, which has brought 300 jobs to the region.

Chetty's experience in business management and sales spans more than two decades. She previously held senior roles in the business banking division of Barclays (Absa) where she led a team of over 2000 people.
