

Play your part in future of Kenya's iHub

 By Tom Jackson

21 Jun 2016

Kenya's iHub is moving into its 'next chapter', with new funding on board and a new chief executive officer (CEO) on the agenda. Now, the renowned innovation space wants you to play a part in its future.

Kenya's iHub. Photo credit: Disrupt Africa

Launched in Nairobi in 2010, the iHub provides a home for Kenya's tech community and allows developers and entrepreneurs to connect and work on ideas. It currently has more than 16,000 members, and also includes the m:lab incubator, iHub Research and Gearbox.

Disrupt Africa reported in March the hub had raised funding from local investors Bitange Ndemo, Becky Wanjiku, Ken Mwenda and Miguel Granier as it moved into what co-founder Erik Hersman described as the "next chapter", while it is now on the hunt for a CEO to help it scale operations.

iHub executive director Josiah Mugambi said last week a key goal is getting the local tech industry more involved in the iHub, which he said is a crucial part of strengthening the organisation.

A forum was scheduled for last week to map out how anyone interested in being closely involved, can be part of the next chapter of the iHub.

By end of 2015, internally-generated revenue consisted of about 70% of the hub's budget, with the iHub team now aiming for the hub to become 100% sustainable this year. Mugambi said this would give it the flexibility to create the programmes that the community needs most, and create a bigger space to accommodate its growing membership.

"As we move into this new season, I remain excited and committed to the ongoing success of iHub," Mugambi said.

"I will continue to be a big part of the organisation, moving into a new strategic role that looks to extend our vision beyond Nairobi. iHub has been an instrumental catalyst in supporting Kenya's tech ecosystem and I look forward to continuing to be a part of seeing that vision grow and spread."

ABOUT TOM JACKSON

Co-founder @DisruptAfrica. Tech and business journalist in Africa. Passionate about the vibrant tech startups scene in Africa, Tom can usually be found sniffing out the continent's most exciting new companies and entrepreneurs, funding rounds and any other developments within the growing ecosystem

- Snapplify rolls out learning projects in SA, Kenya, Uganda - 30 Jan 2017
- African entrepreneurs sought for funding programme - 24 Jan 2017
- Tanzania's Ubongo launches learning app for kids - 1 Nov 2016
- CoLab is northern Nigeria's first tech hub - 25 Oct 2016
- Pay-as-you-go solar power growth in Africa - 24 Oct 2016

View my profile and articles...

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>