New FTTH company launches into the SA market

Directel, an ICT focused company announced the launch of its new consumer-focused fibre internet brand, RocketNet. The fibre internet brand is set to be one of the first ISPs in South Africa to include IT support within their product offering. This will include installing and analysing the solution, advising consumers on how to get better signal strength and using their WiFi networks optimally. The service will be launching in Kyalami Estates, Sunninghill, and Barbeque Downs before moving into other areas of Johannesburg and across the country.

For more, visit: https://www.bizcommunity.com